Week 3 — Prospecting I DBR AI Accelerator

The Big Idea This Week You can't automate prospecting until you can describe your prospect. Most agents chase anyone with a pulse. Top producers know exactly who they're hunting — so AI can find more of them, research them, and warm them up before you ever make contact. This week you'll build two things you'll use for the rest of the program: a one-page Ideal Client Profile, and a repeatable research workflow that turns a cold name into a warm conversation in about ten minutes.

Part 1 — Your Ideal Client Profile (Fill This In) A clear picture of the person (or business) you're built to serve. Keep your Business Brief from Week 2 open — this builds on it. Bullet points are fine.

WHO they are My ideal client (age, role, income, life stage — or for B2B: industry, size, revenue):

In one sentence, the kind of person/business I serve best:

WHAT triggers them The life event or business moment that creates the need NOW:

(e.g. new baby, new home, job change, refinance, hiring, rising costs)

WHERE they are Neighborhoods, niches, groups, or platforms where they cluster:

WHY you fit The specific problem I solve better than anyone for this person:

Part 2 — The 10-Minute Research Workflow Run this before any outreach. It's the difference between a cold pitch and a warm, relevant opener. □ FIND — name the person or business and what you'd want to know before a call. □ RESEARCH — have AI pull recent news, role, company size, and likely pain points. □ PERSONALIZE — lead your opener with something true about THEM, not a generic pitch.

Remember the golden rule: AI researches publicly available info to help you prepare — you still verify before you rely on it, and you never store sensitive personal data in the tool.

Part 3 — Copy-Paste Prompts

Week 3 — Prospecting I DBR AI Accelerator

Build your ICP “Using my business brief above, help me write a one-page Ideal Client Profile. Ask me 5 questions one at a time to sharpen who I serve best, then draft the profile.”

Research a market “Act as a market researcher. What's happening in the [city/area] [housing / small-business / job] market right now that would create demand for [what you sell]? Give me 5 specific angles I could act on.” “What industries in [county] are growing or hiring this year, and why would each one need [your product/service]?”

Research a specific prospect “Research [person or business]. Tell me: what they do, recent news, likely challenges, and 3 things I could mention to start a relevant, helpful conversation — no hype.”

Turn research into a warm opener “Using my brief and this research [paste notes], write a short, warm opener (text, email, or call) that leads with something true about THEM and offers genuine value. Under 90 words.”

Field Notes 03

Industry starting points • Life: new parents, recent home buyers, owners with no key-person coverage. • Real estate: empty-nesters ready to downsize; renters after a job relocation. • Lending: pre-approved buyers who stalled; owners refinancing high-rate debt. • B2B / business owners: companies with 10–100 staff likely overpaying on payroll taxes or benefits.

This Week's Homework ☐ Write your one-page Ideal Client Profile using the template above. ☐ Use AI to research 10 real prospects (people or businesses) that fit your ICP. ☐ Save one personalization note on each — the true thing you'd lead with. ☐ Bring your favorite find to share next week. Keep your 10 researched prospects. Next week (Week 4) we turn them into outreach that gets replies.

Golden Rules • AI researches and drafts; you verify and decide. Confirm facts before you rely on them. • Never store sensitive personal data (SSNs, account or health details) in any AI tool. • Lead with value and truth — research is for serving the prospect better, not tricking them.

Aim before you fire. See you next week.

TURN THE PAGE INTO PRACTICE

The advantage appears when the lesson becomes a habit.

Choose one idea from this guide, put it into a real workflow this week, and review it in your own voice and judgment.
